Section 1: Reading Comprehension

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Passage

Eating habits have changed significantly over the past few decades. In the past, most people ate at home with their families, and meals were often prepared from fresh ingredients. Nowadays, many people have busy schedules and find it difficult to cook every day. As a result, eating out and ordering takeout has become much more common, especially in big cities.

Restaurants and cafes offer a wide variety of foods, from traditional dishes to international cuisine. Fast food is particularly popular because it is convenient and usually inexpensive. However, nutritionists warn that eating too much fast food can lead to health problems such as obesity and heart disease. Despite these warnings, many people continue to choose fast food because it saves time and fits their busy lifestyles.

Another significant change is the rise of food delivery apps. With just a few taps on a smartphone, people can order almost any kind of food and have it delivered to their door. This has made it even easier for people to avoid cooking. Some families still try to eat together at home, but it is becoming less common, especially among younger people.

Interestingly, there is also a growing interest in healthy eating. Many people are now more aware of the importance of a balanced diet. Supermarkets offer a wide range of organic products, and vegetarian and vegan options are becoming increasingly popular. Some people enjoy cooking as a way to relax and spend time with loved ones. Cooking shows and online recipes have inspired many to try new dishes at home.

In conclusion, eating habits are constantly evolving. While convenience and speed are important for many people, there is also a movement towards healthier and more mindful eating. Whether people choose to eat out, order in, or cook at home, the most important thing is to find a balance that works for their lifestyle and health.
