- 1 You and your partner have a friend called Andrea who has been travelling in America. Ask your partner if he/she has heard from Andrea. Use these prompts to form questions.

you / hear / from Andrea?
where / break / wrist?
what / Andrea / do / there?
what / she / do / when she / break / her wrist?
why / she / not use / a bridge?
she / slip?
it / hurt?
how / she / get / to hospital?
what / doctor / say?
Andrea / leave / hospital?

You: Have you heard from Andrea recently?

Student B: Yes, and you'll never believe it – she's in hospital with a broken wrist!

- 2 You later received this email from Andrea. Read it and then answer your partner's questions.

I suppose you heard about my broken wrist? Well, it just gets worse!

There was a fire in the cafeteria of the hospital I'm in. I'm fine – nobody was hurt – but they had to move patients out of the hospital.

It was actually me that discovered the fire! I couldn't sleep, so I went to the cafeteria to get a juice. There was no one there, but there was smoke coming out of the kitchen, so I called 911.

The firefighters arrived very quickly and put the fire out, so it didn't spread any further.

The director of the hospital thanked me personally for my quick thinking. I felt very proud.

Student B: Have you had any more news from Andrea?

You: Yes, I got an email from her today. There was a fire at the hospital she was in last night!

- 1 You and your partner have a friend called Andrea who has been travelling in America. You have received this email from her. Read it and then answer your partner's questions.

You won't believe where I am. I'm in hospital with a broken wrist!

I was in Yellowstone National Park, just hiking and exploring. I was walking by a river when I saw a great place to camp on the other side. I decided to walk across, because there was no bridge nearby and the water wasn't deep. I was halfway across when I slipped and landed on a rock.

It really hurt, and I knew my wrist was broken. Luckily, a park ranger came by in a jeep and took me to hospital. The doctor said it was a clean break, so I guess that's good news.

They're keeping me here for a bit, though, because I hit my head too when I fell.
